TAKE CONTROL OF YOUR HOME THE SMART WAY

Whether it be leaving the hair straighteners on, the iron plugged in or the lights glowing all day, we're all familiar with that niggling feeling that we've left the house with something still switched on or plugged in. Fortunately, Screwfix has launched a range of cutting-edge home automation products, which means you can turn off your power or lights using just your smart phone, iPad, or tablet giving you direct control of your home from your office, car or even your holiday.

Screwfix's new collection of LightwaveRF products by JSJS Designs, offers a range of stylish and retro-fittable dimmers and sockets, offering remote control at or away from home, as well as theatre-style mood lighting, zoned central heating and lockable sockets.

Smart Thinking

In addition to offering complete control via a smartphone or tablet linked to a Wi-fi enabled control box, the LightwaveRF range of soft-start dimmer switches features a 'mini-programme' function, which enables timers and sequences to be programmed quickly and easily, for the ultimate in convenience. For example, automatically switching off lights when you go to bed, ensuring everything is put into 'sleep' mode when you leave the house or scheduling lights to go on and off whilst you are on holiday.

Staying Safe

Furthermore, the collection includes a selection of LightwaveRF single and double power sockets, incorporating LED lights to illustrate if a socket is on or off at a glance. Each socket features full remote control, as well as a built-in function to switch sockets off remotely, providing peace of mind for families with small children or vulnerable adults at home. PIR's can also be used to help trigger lights during the night to help prevent falls, and can even detect dawn and dusk, to automatically switch outdoor lights on when it goes dark.

Going Green

For the energy conscious, the range also offers live eco energy monitoring and management, enabling you to minimise your carbon footprint and energy bills.

The LightwaveRF collection by JSJS designs is completely modular, allowing you to take advantage of as much of as little of the technology as you like. Simple to set up and operate, each product can be easily installed by serious DIYer's and registered tradesmen.

The full LightwaveRF Connect series is now available at over 235 Screwfix stores nationwide, online at www.screwfix.com or by calling 0500 414141.
