Screwfix, the leading multi-channel trade supplier has given its product range a spring clean with the launch of its latest catalogue to sit alongside its popular website and over the phone ordering service, making it even easier for tradesmen to get what they want, when they want it.

Available for busy tradesmen on the move to conveniently pick up from one of the existing Screwfix branches nationwide, the new catalogue features a range of new brands and extended product lines, which can be bought online through screwfix.com, at one of the 220 trade counters or over the phone.

Brand new to the Screwfix landscaping range is the Echo collection of power tools - ideal for tradesmen looking to get a head start with their gardening projects. Featuring trimmers and hedge cutters, the tools in this range offer the user low-vibration and low-noise, whilst maintaining outstanding quality, reliability and durability.

This spring, tradesmen can also save a massive £80 on a Bosch 18V Li-ion drill, which includes one 1.3Ah battery. Lightweight but powerful, this top-of-the-range drill comes with a speedy 24 minute charger, and is available at just £99.

A new collection of Indesit kitchen products such as chimney hoods, hobs and ovens have also been introduced into the catalogue, and for added convenience, tradesmen can now buy these kitchen essentials in a variety of bundle deals meaning great value prices at all times.

Handy screw grab packs are another new addition. With prices starting from £9.99, the packs are available in the Quicksilver, Goldscrew and Turbogold ranges which contain 1,000 of the most popular sizes and give tradesmen convenience straight at their fingertips.
